May 2016 Volume 12 Number 5

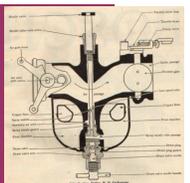

aturday, May 21st, 8-9AM, there was a gathering at the Gingerbread House of 6 T's, '39 Chevy and 2 moderns for the Spring Tour to Burlington. After some of the members partook of nourishment and some just watched the chickens, it was time to leave. At 9:15 we took off on a very well planned drive picking up 1 more T and meeting another T and modern at our next stop, The Chocolate Museum. The museum is small, only two rooms, but quite a bit of information was obtained by all, including free samples of chocolate. Farfel the dog, you remember him, did an outstanding job of telling us the history of Nestles while throwing in trivia at the same time.

Soon we were back on the road for a place called Fried Green Tomatoes. Here we had a chance to visit the gift shop, greenhouse and nose our way into the barn and chicken coop. The highlight of this stop was just sitting in an old rocker on the porch enjoying the goings on. The gift shop was brought to this property by the owner from Indiana and was built without a nail. He added the porch on because as he told me, "it just needed one". The building and porch are put together with pegs as they did in the olden times, long before any of us were born. Sharon brought treats along, just encase some of us were starving after breakfast. Personally, I could have sat on that rocker for the rest of the day, but no, off we went on our way to Waterford to a place called "The Bunker". This is a VFW post that not only had a military plane, tank, helicopter and a lot of memorabilia for us to look at, and served some of the (Go to Page 14)
