Henry Ford Speaks

TIME magazine is known for their 'Man of the Year' cover articles, but this cover was published prior to that idea. The first man of the year cover appeared in 1927. This cover was July 27, 1925. Wilbur Forrest, author of the article said "No other American except the President of the US can command such instant attention for any public statement." Henry Ford was on the top of his game 1925. 12 million cars built and on the road, large employer of workers at a living wage, you either loved him or you hated him, either way Henry commanded respect and notice. Here, Henry Ford shared his opinions on aeronautics, politics, shipping and language. Everyone who has any knowledge of Henry Ford knows that he was very opinionated and voiced it. In 1925 Henry didn't think that the airplane was as far along as it should be. The airplane was not being used properly and if he had time he'd show a few people how. Henry Ford likes Calvin Coolidge and would vote for him again. Shipping is way too expensive, so Henry has taken matters into his own hands. He owns many railroads and 5 ships. Henry also proclaimed that the English language is the worlds language and soon everyone will use it.
